

INTRODUCTION

Each island map shows the various United States Geological Survey (USGS) quadrants by number and name. To find out if a site is on the register, click on the approximate location on the quadrant map for the corresponding quad page in the Hawai'i Register of Historic Places. Look down the list until you find the site. Each page provides the following information.

SITE NUMBER	SITE NAME	TAX MAP KEY	HAWAI'I REGISTER	NATIONAL REGISTER
The number given to a site when it is surveyed. Sites are filed in the State Historic Preservation Office by site number.	The historical and/or common name of a site.	The tax map key number of the site.	The date the site was put on the Hawai'i Register.	The date the site was put on the National Register. NOTE: An 'E' after the date indicates those sites that were determined 'eligible' for the National Register, but have not been formally put on the Register.
